

UNIVERSITY AWARDS NINE HIGH DEGREES

HONORARY DEGREES PRESENTED IN CONNECTION WITH DPU COMMENCEMENT

THREE ARE U. S. JUDGES

College President, Attorney, And Four Methodist Church Workers Also Honored By DePauw

Three United States Judges, one college president and one of the most distinguished attorneys in the country received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at DePauw University commencement exercises here Monday.

All three United States Judges are DePauw graduates. They are: Judge James H. Wilkerson, U. S. District Court, Chicago, class of 1889; Judge Halstead B. Ritter, U. S. District Court, Miami, Fla., class of 1891, and Judge Will M. Sparks, U. S. Court of Appeals, Chicago, class of 1896. Judge Sparks was district circuit court judge at Rushville, Ind., before his recent appointment to the post of Judge Anderson, resigned.

The college president so honored is Louis B. Hopkins, president of Wabash college at Crawfordsville, Ind., a brother of Dr. Ernest M. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth college. The attorney is the Hon. Salmon O. Levinson, Chicago, chairman of the American Commission for Outlawing War, an eminent writer on that subject.

In addition to these five who received the LL. D. degree, four workers in the Methodist Episcopal church were given the degree of Doctor of Divinity. They are, the Rev. W. D. Fairchild, secretary of the Chicago area, Methodist Episcopal church; the Rev. Guy O. Carpenter, pastor of the First Methodist church at Crawfordsville, Ind.; the Rev. Charles H. Whitman, pastor of the First Methodist church at Vincennes, Ind., and the Rev. Manfred C. Wright, pastor of the First Methodist church at Kenilworth, Ind. Three of the four, Fairchild, Carpenter and Wright, are DePauw graduates while the Rev. Mr. Whitman is a former student.

At the same time these nine honorary degrees were conferred by Dr. G. Bromley Oxnam, president of DePauw University, some 300 members of the senior class were candidates for the bachelor of arts or bachelor of music degrees. Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of the Chicago area, Methodist Episcopal church, delivered the commencement address. Gifts to the University within the last two years that will total nearly $4,000,000 were announced during the commencement program.

THE WEATHER
Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; not much change in temperature.

DYNAMITE KILLS FOUR
DETROIT, Mich., June 9 (UP) — When 250 pounds of dynamite exploded in a tunnel 150 feet underground today four men were killed. Eight other workmen, all seriously hurt, were taken to hospitals and it was feared three others were buried in the debris at the foot of the shaft.

A COLD COMMENCEMENT

The temperature this commencement was thought by many to be typical commencement weather, but the reports from the weather bureau show it to be considerably different from some former years.

Five years ago this commencement, the mercury stood above the 100 mark in Greencastle throughout commencement week. This year it was cold enough for furnace fires and many were kept going over the weekend.

Rector Scholar Alumni Meeting

FORMER STUDENTS IN LUNCHEON SUNDAY NOON AT LONGDEN HALL

About seventy Rector scholar alumni, their wives and friends were entertained at a luncheon in Longden Hall Sunday noon by the Edward Rector Scholarship Foundation. Mrs. Edward Rector, widow of the DePauw benefactor, was present as honor guest, as was Roy O. West of Chicago, president of the board of trustees.

Robert Stewart, of Brazil, president of the Rector Alumni association, presided at an informal program. Mr. West was the first speaker followed by Dr. Longden and Dr. John Cady. The latter is a former president of the Rector Alumni and a member of the class of 1922.

Dewey Sanders, the first student ever to receive a Rector scholarship was present. Following a short talk by Harold E. Robbins, permanent secretary of the association, each returning alumni Rector scholar was called upon to give his name, class and a short account of his activities since graduation. Representatives were present from the classes of 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1929. The classes of 1923 and 1929 tied for honors with eight representatives.

Dr. Longden in his short talk stated that this year the foundation passed the 1900 mark for scholarships awarded. There are approximately 100 Rector scholars in the senior class this year costing the foundation some $120,000 each year to graduate. Over 150 new scholarships have been awarded already this year and the total will reach 250 by September, he predicted.

In a short business session following the luncheon, officers for the coming year were elected. Robert Stewart was re-elected president of the association, Russell Alexander of Greencastle, was chosen vice-president, and Harold Robbins of Greencastle was continued as permanent secretary and treasurer. Mr. Stewart is city attorney of Brazil and a member of the class of 1923.

SENIORS HEAR FINAL SERMON BY DR. OXNAM

BACCALAUREATE SERVICES LARGELY ATTENDED ON SUNDAY MORNING

SERVICES IN M. E. CHURCH

Some Turned Away At Morning Service. Other Programs During The Day.

The baccalaureate services for the senior class of DePauw University held in the Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday morning, were attended by one of the largest audiences in many years and all who desired to attend found it impossible to obtain seating room, so taxed was the capacity of the church.

The baccalaureate address was by President Oxnam. The University Choir, with Mrs. Margaret Pearson Sage, as soloist, furnished the music. The opening prayer was by the Rev. Manfred Wright, and Dr. Salem B. Town gave the benediction.

Dr. Oxnam in his final sermon to the members of the senior class used as his subject "Vanishing Vision" and said in part:

I doubt not that every man and woman before me has some cherished dream, some compelling ideal, some splendid aspiration. Perhaps no one here knows of your dream, your ideal, your aspiration, save yourself. The question I desire to ask is a troublesome one. Are ideals of an evanescent nature? Do our splendid visions vanish?

It may be that there has come to you the desire to achieve true scholarship and yourself become a sincere scholar. Such an ideal may have come from association with the splendid scholars of the University who have revealed a passion for painstaking accuracy, men who have observed intensely, carefully controlled their experiments, learned how to interpret the facts they have faced, and, after slow research, have laid hold upon fundamental principles which, in turn, have become tools for further research. These men have incarnated the quality of teachable humility. In addition, they have possessed the ability to relate the particular to the general, to understand the significance of that analyzed in the light of the whole. They have been masters of narrow fields of learning, but trained broadly enough to know the relationship of their special field of learning to all other fields. That may be your ideal. But there is ever the danger of the vision splendid vanishing. When the routine of daily activity begins and the task of bread-winning is upon your shoulders, the hours of study seem to be limited, research is postponed, and slowly the vision of the scholar is lost. But he who recognizes the danger may prepare himself to face it and become victor over the tendency to lose the ideal and remain a scholar in fact.

Others perhaps have cherished the desire to become a constructive citizen. This is a worthy ideal. In the work in history an understanding of the contributions of the forefathers, has been required, relationships with men who have traveled and have been able to reveal to us America the beautiful, appreciation of the great servants in the political life of the nation, have quickened within us the desire to render some service to our country of constructive nature. When graduation comes, one enters the so-called struggle for existence. He hears that self-interest is the only sufficient motive to drive men to real achievement. He is told that moral right must bow to economic necessity. As Masfield puts it, he has a tendency too: "Back what is against what's right." And all the while, if it be he follows self-interest, if it be he refuses to recognize moral right, if it be he back what's wrong, the vision splendid, the ideal of constructive citizenship, fades away. But here again, if the student will highly resolve to be loyal to the ideal, he may develop sufficient strength to shoulder his way through the crowds who are selfish to a position of leadership wherein he can summon the unselfish to constructive service to the nation.

It may be, too, that students in moments of religious devotion have resolved that they will have as the foremost ideal of their lives the attainment of Christ-like character. Jesus of Nazareth has stood before them; they have understood His teaching; they have studied His personality; they have come to see the values that lie in such conceptions as "the supremacy of personality," "the necessity of service," "the transforming power of love," "the potency of truth," such is the ideal—the desire to be Christlike. Upon graduation, one enters a world wherein all too many think of religion as a form, with its institutional manifestations, its creeds its rituals, its power, its prestige. Religion is not seen as a force. It becomes a kind of respectable corporation in which one may buy stock and receive certain dividends. Christ seems to vanish, and, instead of permeating society with His spirit, energy is spent maintaining an institution. If the Master could speak again, He might say to such students, just as he said to his disciples, "In a little while ye will see me no more." If it be, however, that Christ is sufficiently precious, one can, through personal relationships with him in daily devotion, maintain the ideal, keep the vision, splendid and carry on.

Class Of 1885 Has A Banquet

OLD GRADS RETURNED IN GOODLY NUMBER FOR THEIR ANNUAL GATHERING.

One of the most enjoyable reunions of any class at the ninety-first annual commencement at DePauw University, was that of the class of 1885. It was their forty-fifth annual return, and they came all the way from Paris, France, New York, and other distant ports for the reunion. Letters came from a dozen who could not be here in person and these were read and enjoyed, along with the talks by those who were able to attend at the banquet given by the class Saturday evening at the Commercial Hotel.

The old grads recalled many interesting things that took place during their school days and it proved to be a delightful reunion. Samuel Rutheford of Evansville, was elected president for life at the meeting. He presided at the banquet. Among those present out of the 56 who received their diplomas were Mr. Ruthford, Elmer Roberts of Paris, France, Emerson Ballard, Crawfordsville; William Mitchell, Council Bluffs, Iowa; Edgar Sheridan, Chicago; Daniel Gillespie, Logansport; Thomas Gill, Winona; Frank Payne, New York; John W. Clark, Indianapolis; Andrew B. Hanna, Greencastle; LeRoy M. Krider, and Miss Lowe, Evansville, Ill., Thomas Clifton, Covington.

Miss Ogata, daughter of Senzoku Ogata, a junior in DePauw, was present as representing her father. A letter, written by the father from his home in Japan, was read to the class. Mr. Ogata is almost totally blind, but his letter was full of interesting information and indicated he was in Greencastle in spirit, if not in person. Miss Ogata presented each one present with a Japanese fan, the gift of her father. She spoke also during the evening, as did all the other members.

Mr. Roberts has recently been recruited by the Associated Press. He has served that news organization in Germany, London and France for the past 25 years or more and was in Paris during the war. He related briefly, some of the experiences he had during that period.

The banquet table was decorated with a huge bouquet of roses, sent by Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge in memory of her husband, who was a member of the class. At the break-up of the banquet and throughout the evening, all expressed the determination to be here at their next reunion, in 1935 and celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their graduation in a fitting manner.

A representative of the Banner has had the rare privilege of being a guest at the last two banquets and the present generation can enjoy an evening of great pleasure by going back 45 years in Greencastle with the class of 1885.

The following is the class yell and it was given at Alumni Chapel Saturday with considerable vigor by the thirteen members present:

The following letter from Senzoku Ogata, of Tokyo, Japan, and a graduate of DePauw in 1885 was read at the reunion:

Aoyama Gakuin, Aoyama, Tokyo, Japan, March 1st, 1930.
My dear classmates and friends:

Several weeks ago I received Bro. Clark's letter endorsing by Bro. Krider asking me to write a letter to our class-reunion to be held next June. I was very glad I was asked to do so.
My eyesight has been gradually failing for the past years and I am almost blind and it is difficult to write but I do not want to miss this rare good opportunity. Although there is ample time between now and then, and it is rather too soon, but I write now while I can see, for if I postponed, I fear, total blindness might overtake me in the meantime. I have not done any reading myself for some years past, when I wanted to read anything I asked someone else to read it for me, and I have not in (Continued on Page Four)

NINETY-FIRST GRADUATION AT D'PAUW TODAY

DEGREES AWARDED TO MORE THAN THREE HUNDRED AT COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

BISHOP HUGHES IS ORATOR

Fitting Exercise Closes School Year At DePauw. Honorary Degrees Are Awarded.

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, Bishop of the Chicago Area, Methodist Episcopal Church, made the commencement address here Monday morning for 304 seniors receiving degrees from DePauw University. Bishop Hughes, himself a former president of the University, commanded a great audience. Bowman gymnasium was packed to hear him.

The speaker used as his topic "I and We". His message was based upon a recent biography of the Adams family whose members have held positions of distinction from Colonial times until now. Bishop Hughes attempted to show by the negative side of this great family, the need for the graduate to be able to merge his individualistic "I" into the cooperative "We" in this modern and complex world.

Bishop Hughes carried his illustrations into five fields of human experience. His first was marriage, showing that family life must fall if it is based upon a masculine or feminine "I" instead of a harmonious "We". His second point was made in the field of education with pertinent illustrations both from his own experience and from the biography in question, he indicated the need of a great co-operation between teacher and student, between teacher and teacher, and the failure that can result from a dominating "I".

The third field touched upon was that of friendship. The strong personalities in the Adams family usually died unwept and unmourned by a true friend due to a domineering "I" that could not meet another on a common ground as "We".

The fourth field dealt with everyday life, with business, with contacts that are made in seeking a livelihood. Here cooperation means everything and where a strong individualistic person can do good in a crisis, the common experience is that a cooperative "We" is more to be desired.

The last point the speaker made was in the field of religion where even Christ said "If a man love Me, he will keep my words; and my Father will love him and we will come unto him and make our abode with him." This merger went even farther the speaker said and Christ, after identifying himself with God, identified himself with every man. The individual needs not only a "We" fellowship with God but also a feeling of companionship with men and women.

with this paragraph: "So, dear young friends, on your graduation day, we summon you to pass up into all good and holy considerations—whether of home, or of school, or of friendship, or of government, or of religion, even into the companionship with God who makes possible all their glories—so that the passing "I" may become an everlasting "We".

Degrees were conferred by Dr. G. Bromley Oxnam, president of DePauw University. This year five distinguished persons received the degree of Doctor of Laws and four received the degree of Doctor of Divinity. The LL.D.'s were Judge James H. Wilkerson, Chicago; Judge Halstead B. Ritter, Miami, Fla.; Judge Will M. Sparks, Chicago; Hon. Salmon O. Levinson, Chicago, and Louis B. Hopkins, President of Wabash college. The first three named are United States Judges and graduates of DePauw.

The Doctor of Divinity degrees were conferred upon the Rev. W. D. Fairchild, Chicago; the Rev. Manfred C. Wright, Kendallville; the Rev. Guy O. Carpenter, Crawfordsville, and the Rev. Charles W. Whitman, Vincennes. All are graduates or former students at DePauw and with the exception of the Rev. Mr. Fairchild, who is area secretary, are pastors of Methodist churches.

Following the list of honorary degrees, 265 undergraduates received the degree of bachelor of arts and 39 candidates from the DePauw school of music received the degree of bachelor of music or bachelor of public school music. This is DePauw's 91st commencement.

All graduates were divided into three classes, graduates with high distinction, graduates with distinction, and graduates.

INDIANAPOLIS
GET HOSPITAL

RIVERSIDE PARK SITE BELIEVED MOST ADVANTAGEOUS FOR U. S. BUILDING.

Announcement, it is expected, will be made shortly of the President's decision to locate the new veterans' hospital at Indianapolis.

The hospital, providing for 150 beds will be built and equipped at a cost of $500,000. The Federal hospital board, of which Brig. Gen. Hines, director of the United States veterans' bureau, is chairman, will shortly make its recommendation to President Hoover and he is expected to give prompt approval to its decision.

Gen. Hines, without admitting the city to be chosen has admitted that the board will be prepared shortly to announce its conclusion. He said that the final decision will be made as "soon as we obtain additional data on one of the sites proposed."

While he would give no intimation of the site selected, confident belief is expressed by persons familiar with the various offerings made to the board that the hospital will be constructed at Indianapolis. The fact that the veterans' bureau branch office is to have quarters in the hospital makes the state capital, central in its location in the state, the most desirable place for the new building. It is believed that the Riverside park site in Indianapolis will be declared the most advantageous of many sites offered by various cities.

Members of the Indiana congressional delegation, while each is anxious to have the hospital located in his district, have refrained from any attempt at political pressure upon the hospital board.

They have taken the position that the hospital should be built where it will offer the most service to disabled former service men and that it was a matter for the board to settle strictly on merit of sites offered.

AMMUNITION AT PURDUE

LAFAYETTE, Ind., June 8.—"Enjoying life for others as well as for oneself is the most vital thing of our existence," stated Dr. G. Bronsley Gamm, president of DePauw University, who delivered the baccalaureate address in the Purdue university Memorial gym this afternoon before the 284 graduating seniors and many of their relatives and friends. "It is my prayer that your love may be more rich in knowledge and all manner of insight, enabling you to have a knowledge of what is vital, so that you may be transparent, so that your lives may be covered with a harvest of righteousness," was the text of the DePauw president's forceful annual message.

URGES DIVERSIFICATION

EAST LANSING, Mich., (UP)
The farm problem will not be solved by moving one-third of the rural populations into the cities with the remaining two-thirds operating larger farms, Dean J. F. Cox, of Michigan State College believes. Instead, he asserts, diversified farming is going to make agriculture a paying proposition either on a large or small scale.

GOLFER "SHOT" BUNNY

LOGANSPOUT, Ind., June 9 (UP)
Many golfers boast of shooting birds in golf matches, but Henry Corner of Alexandria, claims to be the only person to have "shot" a rabbit. Corner drove off the ninth tee at the municipal links here the other day and hit a bunny squarely in the head, killing it instantly.

HOGS ARE PROFITABLE

MADISON, Wis., (UP)
Hogs provide 11 per cent of the gross farm income of Wisconsin, Walter H. Ebling, agricultural statistician of the federal state crop reporting service, disclosed. Milk and cattle are the only two items that out rank hogs in percentage contribution to the farm dollar of late years, he stated.

URGES LAWYER'S HELP

INDIANAPOLIS, June 9 (UP)
Employment of a people's lawyer to interpret utility laws for persons having business with public service commissions was made the basis of an argument recently by Francis T. Singleton, member of the Indiana Commission.

In an article appearing in the Public Utilities Fortnightly, Singleton contended that every commission should employ a nonpartisan attorney who would develop facts without prejudice to parties concerned, in order that equal and exact justice might be obtained.

"The general public is not familiar with the law applicable to utility controversies—is not organized to engage in such proceedings, and approaches a rate case with an attitude of mind rather than an array of facts," the article said.

"Corporation counsels for various municipalities are usually engaged in general practice, and frequently have no special knowledge of public utility law, participating in such a case once in five or ten years."

"In most instances, the public is left without a defender when its interests are vitally at stake in rate cases. The result is that Public Service commissions in at least 50% of the cases conduct investigations without the participation by the ratepayers in resisting applications for increases in rates."

"A public defender, appearing in each rate case and in each case involving security issues, would serve the purpose that the failure of public participation in such cases now leaves unserved."

"The public defender should not be a prosecutor. He should be one who will present the facts and the law in fairness to all parties concerned in the proceedings."

"The public defender should be an employee of the commission, subject to relief from his duties at the commission's pleasure. His selection should not be dependent upon any authority other than that of the commission. He should be paid out of the appropriation made for the use of the commission in conducting its affairs."

FINED IN CITY COURT

Ernest Miller of Russellville, was fined $1 and costs in city court Monday afternoon by acting police judge Glen H. Lyon on a charge of operating an automobile without a driver's license. Miller was arrested by State Motor Vehicle officers Nesbit and Early, on the National Road at Pleasant Gardens.

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN

CHICKASAW, Okla., June 9 (UP)
Extraordinary precautions were taken against mob violence today as a result of the attack upon Dr. A. J. Anderson by an unidentified negro.

Miss Pearl O'Hair has gone to Bayviewview, Michigan to start a studio.

Among those attending the Democratic convention in Indianapolis on Monday were Frank Wallace, C. C. Hurst, Charles Kelly, Harry Moore and O. G. Webb.

Two cars were slightly damaged on Monday when a car driven by Chester Williams of Greencastle collided with one on College avenue. No one was hurt.

The condition of James Hughes, son of Judge and Mrs. J. P. Hughes, who is in St. Anthony's hospital at Terre Haute with injuries suffered in an auto accident four weeks ago, was reported very good Monday following a good night Sunday night. Hughes has been suffering intensely since surgeons operated last week to set a fractured thigh with plates and bands.

Albert Burke, 40, and George Thompson, 21, vagrants arrested here last Friday under suspicion of having taken a pocketbook left on a bench at the Big Four railroad station by Mrs. O. M. Dill of Rockport, N. Y. were released from the county jail Sunday morning and allowed to go their way. Both men denied any connection with the disappearance of the pocketbook which contained $25 in cash and a $50 check.

BANK DIRECTORS MAY BE

LIABLE TO DISPOSITIONS
CROWN POINT, Ind., June 9 (UP)
Thirteen directors of the closed Hobart bank have ordered by Judge E. Miles Norton to appear in Lake Circuit court June 21 to show cause why they should not be assessed for amounts sufficient to meet all claims against the bank for a total of approximately $50,000.

Since the bank was voluntarily closed five years ago, the directors have paid about $200,000, three fourths of the amount of claims. The citation of Judge Norton is designed to bring in the money to complete settlement.

The bank was a private institution and the directors therefore are declared liable to depositors to the full amount of money they had in the institution.

NO LOITERING HERE

COLUMBUS, Ind., June 9 (UP)
This city, chosen by the Indiana commission for the study of crime as a clinic in the inquiry, may feel the effects of an old ordinance against loitering at late hours, on streets or other public places.

Police Chief Lloyd Nickerson has considered enforcement of the ordinance declaring, "If you are out on the streets late at night, you had better have a good alibi as to where you have been and where you are going."

Admitting the city has been subject to a crime wave, Chief Nickerson, who announced his plans after a conference with Mayor H. Karl Volland, said conditions were not growing worse, but neither were they improving.

NEED SEED WHEAT

K. E. Beeson, of the extension department of Purdue University, in a letter to County Agent Floyd Miller, points out the demand for seed wheat this year. The letter in part says:

Sources of acceptable soft wheat varieties for seed purposes are especially needed this year. Michigan Amber, Trumbull, Rudy and Fultz are approved varieties for milling and certification. The seed demand for Pankoff and Michkof is scarcely sufficient to justify certification of these two varieties. It is desirable to locate fields of the other varieties that are pure enough to recommend for local use. If sufficiently pure for seed stock of the variety, certification should be suggested to the grower. Applications for certification of wheat, oats and barley are due June 15.

The Tri-State Soft Wheat Millers association is endeavoring to locate field sources of the above named varieties that are at least 95% pure, which trace to certified stock if possible. Two field men will work in a number of Indiana counties to inspect fields just before harvest. Fields that are satisfactory will be included in a seed list distributed by the association, and local elevators as well as farmers will be urged to make use of these sources. There is no charge to the farmer.

If you can apply this office with the names of farmers having desirable fields, or can give this information to inspectors, the information will be much appreciated.

INTEREST IN CHEMICAL TREATMENT OF WEEDS

Recent demonstrations of the chemical treatment for the eradication of Canada thistle, has created quite a bit of interest, according to County Agent Floyd Miller, who re-emphasized the fact that now was the opportune time for farmers to ride themselves of this weed menace.

The county agent recommends a spray treatment of atlatide, a chemical containing calcium chlorate, in the proportion of one and one-half pounds to the gallon of water, for eradication of the weed.

Mr. Miller stated that the thistle not only cut down the value of any farmer's land, but also was a menace to his neighbor as well, due to the rate at which the weed spreads.

Atlatide, which is sprayed on the thistle, filters down into the roots, destroying these as well as the upper parts. Mr. Miller said this was the only effective method of combating the Canada thistle.
